

House & Home

The New York Times

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1999

INTERIORS

Whimsical Objects

Sheila Bridges, a Manhattan interior designer, has just opened Sheila Bridges Home in Hudson, N.Y., an extension of her design business, "where there are furniture and accessories that we've designed," she said. Ms. Bridges (below, sitting in one of her "Adirondack" chairs, $800) and Aleman Moore, accessories designers in Green-point, Brooklyn, collaborated on a 3-by-5-foot straw rug that looks like the American flag, shown above, $2,800. She also sells old objects that are not fancy enough to be called antiques, like the stool above, which she re-upholstered in a two-toned cotton gingham ($500), along with new dog beds ($125 to $175). The store, at 610 Warren Street, is open Thursday through Monday. Information: (518) 828-1266.

Photographs by Chris Ramirez for The New York Times