

SHOPPING

Le Creuset's Teams Up With Sheila Bridges for a Historical, Limited-Edition Collection

Are your shelves ready for some Harlem Toile de Jouy?

BY MEDGINA SAINT-ELIE PUBLISHED: SEP 1, 2023

LE CREUSET

Whether you are a Le Creuset devotee or have yet to try the classic cookware, its newest collection, Harlem Toile de Jouy in collaboration with Sheila Bridges, will have you adding to your shopping cart immediately.

Bridges captures the story of her home city, Harlem, New York, and the dynamic spirit of everyday Black life through pastoral motifs. This limited-edition collection is rich with storytelling and celebrates the confidence of the Black community.

LE CREUSET

LE CREUSET

“The celebration of Black culture through Harlem Toile de Jouy is very meaningful to me, and I’m thrilled to partner with Le Creuset to create an heirloom that can be handed down from generation to generation,” Bridges said in a statement.

Le Creuset's traditional white kitchenware is detailed in this collection with intricate vignettes etched in black appliqué. The stunning French toiles instantly draw eyes to the playful scenes rendered on each vessel. Whether you're holding on tightly to your pantry lined with colorful Le Creuset staples or looking to make a new statement, here's a line that will take the spotlight in and out of use.

“We’re honored to partner with Sheila Bridges to bring her iconic Harlem Toile de Jouy, pattern into the kitchen with this limited-edition collaboration,” Christopher Scinto, senior vice president of marketing and sales said. “Proudly paying homage to an authentic history, this design is intended to pair effortlessly with any Le Creuset color palette.”

You can find signature pieces of Le Creuset's portfolio like the cast iron round Dutch oven, stoneware pitcher, and mugs in four glorious designs. The line is available only at Bloomingdale's, Le Creuset Signature Stores, and LeCreuset.com.

Vibrant and chic, the collection invites you to tell a story with kitchenware that captures the strength of a community while remaining modern in its design. Can't look away? Be a part of this powerful moment by purchasing a limited edition Harlem Toile de Jouy. Bridges says, "Now, consumers can set the table for self-expression and claim a bold piece of design history."

---

Love learning what exclusive collections are launching? Let's obsess over it together.

---

SHOP THE HARLEM TOILE DE JOUY COLLECTION

---

Le Creuset x Sheila Bridges Pitcher

$54 AT BLOOMINGDALE'S

Le Creuset x Sheila Bridges Jump Rope Mug

$28 AT BLOOMINGDALE'S

CREDIT: MATTHEW SCOTT

Le Creuset x Sheila Bridges Cast Iron Round Dutch Oven

$430 AT BLOOMINGDALE'S

MEDGINA SAINT-ELIE

SENIOR MARKET AND PARTNERSHIPS EDITOR

Medgina Saint-Elie covers everything your home needs. She writes about exciting new product launches, hands-on reviews, and the "lightbulb" moments in every maker's story. In overseeing key HB editorial franchises, including the Live Better Awards, Saint-Elie champions the work of BIPOC entrepreneurs in the design and beauty industries. In addition to House Beautiful, her work has been published in Byrdie, Snapchat, and more. Outside of work, the writer and poet can be found documenting her travels on social media and saving memes for future use.

Read Full Bio